Location: Surrey, British Columbia, Canada
Summary purpose: This executive summary provides a concise, documented account of allegations made by the declarant regarding decades-long harassment, alleged unlawful experimentation, intellectual property disputes, and systemic obstruction affecting the declarant and his late father. The full dossier and supporting documents are available upon request to legal counsel or investigative bodies.

Background & Business History

Lloyd M. Hamilton (born 1977) is a fourth-generation Canadian with a background in consumer services and collections. He and his father, Lawrence (Larry) Marvin Hamilton, developed consumer-oriented business concepts during the late 1980s and early 1990s, including Dial■A■Purchase (est. 1986), SUMS / STRAIGHT UP MARKETING SYSTEM (est. 1990), and International Shopping Group Ltd (ISG, est. 1992). These ventures focused on consumer advisory services, membership models and plans to launch a wide-scale e-commerce offering intended to improve purchasing power for consumers.

Intellectual Property Claim — Alleged Misappropriation

The declarant alleges that in 1994 his father met with an individual identified as Jeffrey P. Bezos in Bellevue, Washington, and provided business plans and manuals intended to be used for a pioneering e■commerce site at the domain InternationalShoppingGroupLtd.com. The declarant alleges that the materials were not returned and that the individual subsequently launched and expanded an e■commerce platform (Amazon.com) that the declarant believes incorporated elements of their plans. These claims are presented here as allegations; no independent verification is included in this summary. Supporting documents and correspondence cited by the declarant are available for review by authorized parties.

Onset of Alleged Targeting & Timeline

The declarant states that he was first targeted on or about September 21, 1990 (age 13). He reports ongoing episodes of what he describes as coordinated harassment and surveillance over multiple decades. The declarant reports nine discrete campaigns of alleged targeting affecting himself (1990–present) and at least six affecting his father (1990s–2008). His father died on July 4, 2008; the declarant alleges the death was related to prolonged mistreatment and exposure during these campaigns.

Nature of Alleged Abuses

Allegations made by the declarant include— but are not limited to — the following categories (as reported by the declarant): Coordinated social, employment and legal pressure campaigns resulting in repeated homelessness, loss of income and reputational harm. Unlawful entry, tampering with personal and financial records, and property interference. Electronic surveillance, phone and communications interception, and digital account takeover without warrants (as alleged). Alleged use of advanced technologies described by the declarant as directed■energy devices (DEWs) and V2K (voice■to■skull) techniques causing acute and chronic health effects. Covert audio/video observation through concealed devices in consumer objects (alleged). These points represent the declarant’s reported experience and are presented as allegations; medical, forensic, and documentary corroboration is noted as available in the full dossier.

Impact & Damages (Summary)

The declarant reports substantial personal, familial and economic harms, including repeated episodes of homelessness, multiple hospitalizations, criminal detentions, business disruption, and the premature death of his father. The declarant estimates multi■billion dollar economic loss related to business opportunity and alleged misappropriation; specific calculations and supporting financial records are included in the full materials available to investigators or counsel.

Available Evidence & Requested Action

The declarant reports he has compiled chronological logs, correspondence, scanned documents, medical records, witness names and contact details, and other materials. He requests that relevant oversight bodies, legal counsel, or investigative journalists review these materials. The declarant seeks: independent investigation, legal review for possible civil and criminal claims, and preservation of evidence.

Legal & Ethical Caution

This document is a declarant's executive summary of allegations. Statements herein are presented as claims by the author and not as proven facts. Any individual or organization named in this summary is presumed innocent of any wrongdoing unless proven otherwise in a court of law. The declarant is encouraged to seek legal counsel prior to public distribution of potentially defamatory allegations. Investigative bodies or legal counsel reviewing this material should take standard steps to verify claims through independent evidence, witness interviews, and where appropriate, forensic or medical analysis.

This executive summary is prepared by the declarant to accompany a larger dossier of supporting materials. If you are an authorized investigator, counsel, or reporter requesting access to the full dossier, please contact the declarant at the email address above. The declarant is willing to provide notarized statements and additional documentation under appropriate confidentiality arrangements.
